SOMERSET LONG BAY NATURE RESERVE

The park is maintained by the Bermuda Abdubon Society and the park is right next to Somerset Long Bay beach. You can see a number of migratory birds and fowls here. Some of the common birds include the herons, kingfishers, warblers, egrets, American Coots etc. The field areas inside the park is a good habitat for Grosbeaks, Buntings and Flycatchers.

A Large part of it is still undeveloped and therefore provides a natural and quiet atmosphere that many parks or beaches do not offer. There is a fresh water pond in the park.

HOG BAY PARK & NATURE RESERVE

This Park, is one of the newer National Parks of Bermuda. It is an unspoiled 32 acres of rural land located at the southern part of Sandy's Parish. Hog Bay Park is one of the best bird locations in Bermuda. Its forest area, under developed marsh land and most western coastline attract large number of birds. You can see birds like Olive-sided Flycatcher, Orchard Oriole, Clay-colored Sparrow, Painted Bunting, Purple Finch and Rough-legged Hawk time, and also during the fall migration.

Next is the 35-minute scenic drive across the islands. Enjoy the coastal vistas of our South Shore National Park and arrive at SPITTAL POND NATURE RESERVE located in Smiths Parish. It is Bermuda's largest bird sanctuary and one of the best bird watching locations. This concentration of a number of different habitats within a small area makes Spittal Pond Nature Reserve a haven for wildlife, particularly migratory and resident birds. For this reason, Spittal Pond was declared a Wetland of International Importance (Ramsar Site) in 1999. If you are lucky you may even see migrating Humpback Whales from Portuguese Rock in the spring.

Lastly, visit JOHN SMITH'S BAY PARK. Since it is a bit too far from the typical tourist places, it is a good opportunity to visit. It is located just east of the Spittal Pond Nature Reserve. The beach is named after the famous English sea Captain John Smith. This was where he met Pocahontas, daughter of the Indian chief Powhatan, in 1607. He was an explorer who first produced a map of Bermuda in 1631. This is a wide stretch of pale pink sand with crystal clear water. Snorkel, grab a cache or just relax on the beach.

Little Island, BIG Adventure ensuring that visitors to Bermuda and residents alike, get to see as much of our Island's scenic landscape, inland vistas, plants, forests, and animals that are in our natural habitat. Finding Geocaches allows you to be a part of a virtual tour, it emphasizes historical facts and offers travelers an uncommon perspective of the intricacies of this little Island.
